The Carmen must have had some stiff practice as they are a very different locking lot from the isam that played the Academy last week and were forced to surrender in the eighth inning. This new team naver heard the word "quit" and Jack Flynn isn't the man that is going to tell them. They are now ready for the N. F. A. at any time and wish to make up for their last week's disgrace. They deserve another game, as they played like a bunch of big leaguers. Eddie Curran, the Shore Line twirler, deserves most of the credit for the game. Best of all it helps the infantrymen and machine gunners, because these boys, who are to use the bayonet, find the principles of the two games analogous. But the army boxing game is not to be mis-understood; it is not to be confused with prize fighting. Indeed, there is a marked difference which one who has seen both games as they are played will vouch for.

The big thing about army moxingthat is the kind of boxing in which the men meet in the ring for a decis-ion—is the fact that it's about the Some by immination—is the fact that it's about the manifest sport one ever witnessed. And the old prize-lighter is in it with the same spirit with which everyone else enters it. One may see two fellows representing different organizations fighting before a crowd—the size of which must make the eyes of the boxing promoter jealous with envy—with nothing more at stake than a mythical title, but with so much vimand pen in every move as Mike Donovan ever gave to the game in his life.
